MANY VISITORS DRAWN HERE BY DAY'S PROGRAM

Contests, Addresses, Fireworks Enjoyed by Throng at Crystal Lake Park

RESTAURANTS BUSY

Food Supply Exhausted, Forcing Several Dining Places To Close

Marion paid its annual tribute to labor when about 5,000 persons, residents of this city and surrounding territory, gathered at Crystal Lake park yesterday afternoon and last night for a program arranged by the Marion Central Labor union.

The celebration entertainment, starting about 1 o'clock in the afternoon with various contests for prizes totaling approximately $500, contributed by local business firms, closed late at night with an elaborate display of fireworks.

The celebration drew many visitors from outside communities. Those coming from outside points were so numerous that local restaurants were greatly overtaxed, several being forced to close their doors last evening when food supplies were used up. Closing of all grocery stores and bakeries for the day complicated the problem for the restaurant owners, who found that no bread or other foods were available.

Business Suspends

In keeping with the annual holiday, business in general was suspended and employes of the various factories were given the entire day for taking part in the program celebration.

The program was climaxed last night with addresses by George Stone, of York, Pa., national labor union organizer, E. L. Hitchens, Cincinnati labor leader, and short talks by Dr. B. L. George, pastor of Epworth M. E. church, and John Abel, former state president of the Eagles and Democratic candidate for representative to the general assembly from Marion county. The speaking program was held in the dance pavilion at Crystal Lake park, following the picnic dinner on the grounds. Contests featured the entertainment in the afternoon.

Referring to unemployment in the United States, Stone, formerly connected with the labor department of the president's cabinet in the Wilson administration, emphasized in the principal address, the need for a more efficient organization of labor.

"The great need in the country today for the laboring man is more wages and less working hours," Stone maintained. "We are told that we are now in the time of prosperity, but there are more unemployed persons in the United States today than there ever was in the history of the nation.

"This situation has occurred not because of a slump in business but because of the increasing use of machinery in the industrial plants of the nation. Unless organized labor takes a hand in the matter, the situation will be more serious in the future."

Stone confined his address largely to discussing the benefits of labor to the people in the past, the stand of labor

FIND CHILD'S BODY IN VILLAGE DITCH

Stepmother Held in Canton Jail When She Refuses To Answer Questions

Canton, Sept. 4—While the bruised and battered body of eight-year-old Dorothy Evanvitch lay in an undertaking parlor today, the little girl's stepmother, Mrs. Caroline Evanvitch, was held in the county jail in connection with her murder.

A neighbor, John Gebringer, found the little body Sunday morning in a ditch near the Evanvitch home at Elton. All but the head was submerged in water. Coroner T. C. McQuate announced, after an autopsy, that the child died from a blow on the head delivered from a heavy instrument.

Although cold weather prevailed Saturday night, the body of the little girl was dressed only in a thin sweater and skirt. The body was placed in the ditch after she had been killed, according to the coroner.

Mike Evanvitch, a laborer and father of the victim, had been at work in Massillon Saturday night, authorities say. The stepmother was sullen and unresponsive when questioned, officers said, and she was arrested.

MRS. KNAPP IS GIVEN 30-DAY JAIL SENTENCE

Receives Term with Scarcely Quiver of Lip; Will Appeal, Is Claim

FRIENDS AT HER SIDE

Sentence Is Result of Conviction for Theft of Census Money

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 4—Former Secretary of State Florence E. S. Knapp, today was sentenced to 30 days in the Albany county jail for stealing census money.

The first woman ever elected to high office in New York state received the sentence with hardly a quiver of the lip.

Supreme Court Justice Stephen Callaghan of Brooklyn sentenced Mrs. Knapp to jail after her counsel, P. C. Dugan, and Attorney General Albert Ottinger through his special deputy, George Z. Medalie, had appealed for leniency.

Mrs. Knapp was convicted last May of grand larceny but sentence was not passed by the court at that time because of her health.

She was tried twice. The first time the jury disagreed after deliberating eight hours. The second time a verdict of guilty was returned after the jury had been out less than four hours.

To Make Appeal

The specific indictment upon which Mrs. Knapp was tried charged her with the stealing of $2,875 of the $1,200,000 state census fund in 1925.

It was alleged by the prosecution, however, that she had defrauded the state out of upwards of $25,000 by placing her relatives on the census payroll and then pocketing their checks.

After sentence had been pronounced counsel for Mrs. Knapp announced they would make an immediate appeal. In the meantime, however, the Albany sheriff was making arrangements to take Mrs. Knapp to jail.

Women friends of the former state official rushed over and threw their arms around her and kissed her a moment after sentence had been pronounced. Instead of breaking down and weeping as had been expected, Mrs. Knapp smiled at them. She seemed to be the coolest woman in the courtroom.

Mrs. Knapp was far more nervous on the night last May when the jury pronounced her guilty than she appeared to be when she heard Justice Callaghan announce that she would have to spend the next 30 days in the Albany jail.

700 ATTEND LODGE LABOR DAY OUTING

Baseball Honors Go to Marion Masons at Secosium Park Picnic

Seven hundred persons, including members of Marion Lodge No. 70, F. and A. M. and Masonic lodges of Bucyrus, Upper Sandusky, and Crestline, and friends attended the Labor day picnic of the lodges at Secosium park yesterday.

Presentation of the Masonic Central Ohio recreational ball league pennant to the local team was one of the features of the outing. The Marion team won the league pennant this season. The local nine was also presented with a silver loving cup, donated by J. M. Jolley, manager of Secosium park, for winning the tournament held yesterday at the park.

Games and contests for the "kids" and adults followed the presentation ceremonies. A basket picnic was held at 6 o'clock. Free dancing, both round and square, [illegible] the night.

The Galion Masonic lodge and members of Marion Sojourners lodge were invited guests to the picnic.

WANTS A JOB

MORE THAN 1,000 SEE MAN'S SUICIDE LEAP

Tony Babiak, Former Harding Hotel Employe, Ends Life at Toledo

Funeral services were held in Toledo, today, for Tony Babiak, 42, a native Russian and until recently employed as second cook at Hotel Harding, who committed suicide by drowning in the Maumee river, Toledo, Friday, after jumping 100 feet from the Cherry st. bridge.

More than 1,000 persons witnessed the act, according to word from Toledo. While the body was recovered immediately by two bystanders, restorative measures of Toledo police proved futile. Babiak, who jumped from the bridge at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, was believed to have been worrying over domestic difficulties. He leaves a wife and family in Russia, where he was born and resided until 12 years ago.

Babiak had been employed at the Harding hotel about four years. He resigned recently, telling local friends he was going to leave Marion for a "rest," and expected to return later. Leon Roman, also a chef at the hotel, viewed the body in Toledo, Saturday.

M. Carvalo, of New York City, has been employed as second cook since resignation of Babiak. The dead man was said to have been a cook for the Russian royal family before coming to America.

FIRE DESTROYS BARN, CONTENTS NEAR BUCYRUS

Officials Investigate Ninth Crawford County Fire in Past Year

ORIGIN UNKNOWN

Damage to Building Placed at $4,000; Insurance Carried by Owner

(Special to The Star)

Bucyrus, Sept. 4—The ninth of a series of mysterious fires that, within the past year, have destroyed nine farm barns in Crawford county causing losses that will aggregate more than $80,000, Sunday morning destroyed a large barn on the Amos Krauter farm on the north River rd.

An intensive investigation has been launched by city officials and representatives of the insurance company into the cause of the latest fire.

Damage to the barn was placed at $4,000. Forty tons of hay, 800 bushels of wheat and barley, all machinery stored in the structure, and a straw shed were also burned. Value of the barn's contents could not be learned.

Origin of the fire is unknown. The theory that it might have been caused by spontaneous combustion was not considered likely because the hay had been in the mow since last June.

The barn, machinery and grain were partially covered by insurance. The same company also held insurance on the other eight barns that have been destroyed during the past year.

Lefevre is a famous night pilot and a former athlete of note. He holds several long distance track records. Both were members of the crew of the bimotored plane which attempted a Paris to Indo-China flight under the command of Lieut. Col. Antiunat. A heavy storm halted that flight in Syria.

Damage to the extent of $200 resulted from a roof fire at the home of Mrs. Daniel Nagle, 199 South Seltner av., at 10:30 o'clock this morning. REPUBLICANS MAKE BID FOR FARM VOTE

Section of National Campaign Textbook Deals with Agriculture

Washington, Sept. 4—The Republicans made a new bid for the farm vote today with the publication of the first section of the national committee's campaign textbook. It dealt exclusively with agriculture.

"The American farmer under Republican administration has been given practically a monopoly of his home market," said the Brochure. "In this home market, which is a protected market, he disposes of 95 per cent of his products at prices higher than are paid elsewhere in the world for like products.

"Republican legislation in behalf of agricultural producers has been formulated with a view of its having permanent value and being founded on sound political economy and good sense. The control of every Republican congress has been in the hands of those representing agricultural constituencies. So it has been logical and inevitable that the interests of agriculture have been conserved by the Republican party."

It declared that Herbert Hoover's own farm program would supplement the aid already given the farmers by the Republicans.

CLAIM MINISTER DID NOT GET FAIR TRIAL

Board of Galion Church Issues Statement in Behalf of Rev. S. A. Stephan

Galion, Sept. 4—The case of the Rev. S. A. Stephan of the First Methodist church, who was recently found guilty in mayor's court and fined on the charge of resisting and abusing an officer, has again been brought into discussion by publication of a statement of the case signed by the official board of the Methodist church.

The Rev. Mr. Stephan was arrested by local police officer, Charles Ferrell, following an argument when the Rev. Mr. Stephan demanded the immediate arrest of W. D. Hillis, Cromerwett rd., who was reported to be in an intoxicated condition and abusing his family. According to the evidence introduced at the trial the Rev. Mr. Stephan spoke abusively of the officer and threatened to expose alleged "rottenness" of the local police department.

In the statement issued by the board of the church, headed by George W. Nickels, president, and W. A. Franks, secretary, it is charged that the Rev. Mr. Stephan was not given a fair trial, that the jury for the case was "picked" and that the affair was given unfair publicity and many untrue stories circulated.

In addition a complete story of the affair was given by Miss Newella Hillis, daughter of W. D. Hillis, who was an eye witness of the arrest of the Rev. Mr. Stephan and who personally appealed to the minister for aid against the alleged abusiveness of her father.

The board and the First Methodist church have taken a stand with the Rev. Mr. Stephan and are supporting him in his fight for "vindication and justice."

The Rev. Mr. Stephan has refused to pay his fine, stating that to do so would be acknowledgement of a fair trial and has appealed the case.

SCHOOLS OVER STATE END VACATION PERIOD

Enrollment on Increase, Figures at Education Department Indicate

By International News Service.

With the end of the three-month vacation period, Ohio pupils trooped back into their class-rooms today, some hopefully, a great many reluctantly, and a few enthusiastically.

All, however, sensed the fact that their unalloyed freedom was over and that "teacher" would once more hold away over their daily doings from now until next June.

Increased attendance figures were noted throughout the state. Educators indicated the significance of this as proving that parents were more and more coming to a realization of the importance of their children being equipped with a good education to face complexities in the rapid-fire business, industrial, professional and agricultural world.

For the most part, opening day sessions were confined to elementary exercises, the dedication of some new portion of the various schools or just "getting acquainted with teacher."

Many of the students in the kindergarten classes were accompanied to school by their mothers who turned their charges over to the teachers and returned home confronted by the awful fact that their children were "growing up."

GIVES SERMON AT LAST UNION SERVICE

Rev. G. A. Kanzler Speaks on "Thy Kingdom Come" at Presbyterian Church

"This is truly the wonder age of a progressing world," said the Rev. G. A. Kanzler, pastor of Salem Evangelical church in his sermon, "Thy Kingdom Come", at the last union church service of the summer months held Sunday night at First Presbyterian church.

We know that there are stupendous problems yet to be solved, and they will require the combined thought and research of all the sciences and professions. I am not yet satisfied with the world. AMERICA AND RUSSIA NEAR TRADE ACCORD

Extension of Business into Soviet Market Leads to Belief

Moscow, Sept. 4—A United States-Soviet Russian trade accord, developing possibly into de facto recognition of the Soviets by America in a few years, is generally believed to be impending as a result of the increasing commercial relations between the two countries. It was helped along, according to opinion held here, by the Soviet's decision to accept the Kellogg-Briand anti-war treaty with reservations. Slight hope is held out however, for actual diplomatic recognition.

American business in the past year penetrated the Russian market to such an extent that the United States is now the world's greatest exporter to Soviet Russia. At the present rate of growth, Soviet import from the United States will exceed last year by 54 per cent. In the first eight months of this year American firms exported $77,000,000 worth of goods, principally raw materials and machinery, to Russia. The total for the whole of last year was $75,000,000.

13 HOME RUNS

Knocked In Seven Labor Day Double Bills

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Thirteen home runs have been added to major league records today as the result of the seven double-headers played yesterday. Five of the home runs were scored in American league games, while the Nationals piled up eight.

Of the seven doubleheaders, six ended in clean sweeps, only the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox getting an even break.

Eight double bills were scheduled for the Labor Day program, but the Brooklyn Robins and the Boston Braves were shut in by the rain in Boston.

JACK DEMPSEY WILL MAKE "IMPORTANT" STATEMENT TO PRESS

Former Champion Expected To Tell Writer of Future Ring Plans

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 4—Jack Dempsey may peep out of the grease paint long enough today to declare himself back in the running for the world's heavyweight championship. This, anyhow, was the intimation taken from his announcement that he would have something "important" to say to local sports writers at his hotel before nightfall. Even Dempsey realizes that the only important announcement he can make in regard to himself is one having to do with his immediate intentions in connection with boxing.

Faced with a "yes or no" question about boxing again while he was making up in his dressing room for premiere of his show last night, Dempsey was saved the embarrassment of answering when his press agent interposed with this significant remark:

"Mr. Dempsey is reserving his answer to that question for the sports writers tomorrow."

In view of the fact that the Mr. Dempsey he was discussing had answered that question in the negative at least a hundred times out of a possible 99 or something during the last six months, it is assumed that this worthy fellow is not imbued with the notion that anyone wishes to hear him say no again. The man, in other words, always must bite the dog very severely to get his name in an eight column banner line for the late sports extras. The other well known former fighter, Mr. Tunney, may be wearied by the daily interview, but if there ever was any danger of Mr. Dempsey reaching this stage, the crisis passed when he signed a theatrical contract. Just at the moment Mr. Dempsey would rather h... a banner line than both Mr. Tunney and Dave Barry on the floor together with St. Vitus to do the counting.

MACKMEN DEFEATED IN TWIN BILL AND YANKEES BOOST LEAD

Yanks Owe Win to Sensational Catch Made by Earl Combs

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—The Giants are back in the race again. They advanced to the runner-up position, four and a half games behind the Cards, by beating the Phillies twice while St. Louis and Chicago were losing both ends of their double-headers to the Reds and the Pirates.

Old Jack Scott, who has helped John McGraw capture two pennants, started and won his first game since his return to the Polo grounds, 4 to 3, and Joe Genewich turned in the finale, 9 to 3, when his team-mates bit Ed Baecht 20 times.

Puddy starred in the opener of the two games the Reds took from the league leading Cards. Trailing until the ninth inning of the opener the Cards then whacked out three runs to take the lead, 5 to 4. Purdy drove in the tying run in the last of the ninth and the game remained in a knot until the same Red brought home the winning tally in the eleventh. The late game went to the Reds in the sixth when a flock of hits brought in six runs to make it 8 to 2.

The Pirates won the morning game from the Cubs, 16 to 1, and took the afternoon session, 6 to 3, dropping the Cubs out of their second place seat.

Adding a whole game to their lead by splitting a Labor Day bargain bill with the Red Sox while the Athletics were taking a two-ply drubbing from the Senators, the Yanks owe their win to Earl Combs who made the best catch seen this season at the Yankee stadium when he leaped high to spear Ken Williams drive as it was passing over the wire netting into the right center stands for a home run with the bases loaded. Combs' fine play retired the Sox and stayed off the sure scoring of four runs—which would have meant the game—which might mean the pennant. A two run rally in the ninth of the nightcap fell short and the Red Sox won, 4 to 3.

Connie Mack's boys were swamped in the early game at Washington, 6 to 1, and the Senators nosed them out in the late session, 5 to 4. Hadley shone in the opener. A snappy double play, Bluege to Harris to Judge, pulled Firpo Marberry, hero of Sunday's Yank shutout, out of a bad hole in the eighth.

Firpo had been sent to the mound with two Athletic runs in and the tying tally on first with none out. A single and a pass loaded the bags and things looked dreary for the Senators until the fast play saved the game. Firpo struck out two pinch-hitters in the ninth. French and Ty Cobb, when a hit would have knotted up the score.

The White Sox took two from the Tigers, 5 to 2 and 7 to 5, and the Browns two-timed the Indians, 5 to 3 and 16 to 10. The Cubs thus moved up from seventh to fifth place and the Tigers and Indians slipped down a notch each.

HELEN MAD

New York, N. Y., Sept. 4—Miss Helen Wills, five times national women's lawn tennis champion, feels so deeply aggrieved that her prowess on the courts should be questioned as a result of the "chivalrous" victory she scored two weeks ago over Frita Mercur of Bethlehem, on the courts of the Westside tennis club at Forest Hills, that she has challenged Mercur to a return match to be played at Forest Hills this afternoon and at the same time has stipulated that Mercur must play his best.

HOME RUNS

Gehrig, Yanks; Hafey, Cards, (2); Cuyler, Cubs; Terry, Giants, (2); Williams, Phillies; Williams, Red Sox; Klein, Phillies; P. Waner, Pirates; Rothrock, Red Sox; Myatt, Indians; McGowan, Browns.

THE LEADERS—Ruth 47, Hack Wilson 30, Bottomley 27, Gehrig 23, Hafey 22.

LEAGUE TOTALS—National 511; American 419.

Forward Sweep Of Market Halted By Profit-Taking

HEAVY WITHDRAWAL OF FUNDS REPORTED

Professionals Inclined to Short Side for Temporary Advantage

STEEL BUSINESS GOOD

Maturing Obligations of Government and Corporations To Cut Down Money

BY W. S. COUSINS.
I. N. S. Financial Editor.

New York, Sept. 4.—The aggressive forward sweep of industrial stock prices was held up today as the market paused to absorb heavy profit-taking in the various departments, particularly the motors and the steels. Early speculative interest revolved around the motor shares, in which the volume of buying orders over the triple holiday has been the largest since the movement started.

The market also faced a handicap in the heavy withdrawals of funds from the call loan market. Up to mid-day a total of $25,000,000 had thus been called in, forcing liquidation of some of the thinly-margined accounts. Professionals in this period were inclined to the short side of the market, for temporary advantage at least.

The business and industrial reports of the day were as favorable as could be looked for at this time. A new peak in steel mills operations was set this week by the industry in the Youngstown district with a record of 85 per cent of capacity. Copper consumption continues in good volume and freight car loadings have expanded in accordance with the increase in the movement of commodities in domestic trade.

Between this date and the middle of the month the government, the corporations and the banks face a huge task in the financing of maturing obligations of various kinds, and this will restrict the volume of funds available for stock market purposes. The interest and dividend payments will, however, furnish a broad basis for new investment buying of both stock and bonds, market demand for which is expected to broaden out in the next few weeks.

Tomato Market Menaced by Threat of Frost, Dealers at Local Produce Stands Say

Continued Cool Weather Endangers Crop in Vicinity of Marion; Price of Home-Grown Supply Shows Slight Advance; Stock of Sweet Corn Decreases

With cool weather continuing to hold its grip in Marion and vicinity, the tomato market followed an uncertain trend in the Marion retail produce stores, today.

Prediction of an advance in the price of home-grown tomatoes was made today by local dealers in the event of frost in the patches in the vicinity of Marion. Should the weather continue cool, frost will occur in the near future, they predict.

The first occurrence of frost will kill a portion if not all of the tomato crop and the price will rise immediately, dealers predict.

The best grade of tomatoes was selling today at $1.25 a bushel while a lesser grade was being quoted at $1. Dealers the first part of last week were selling the home-grown variety at $1 a bushel for the best grade. A good supply was noted on the market today.

With a forecast of an early end of the season, a poor grade of sweet corn had appeared for the day's sales early this morning. The poor grade appearing today and prediction of an early end to the season has resulted from the continued dry and cool weather in the vicinity of Marion. Dealers report the sweet corn ears to be drying on the stalks on account of the lack of rain.

In spite of the decrease in the market, the price remained at 20 cents a dozen today. Some dealers quoted corn at 18 cents a dozen as a special price, Saturday.

The vegetable and fruit markets had scanty supplies of the various saleable articles today following the week-end and holiday yesterday when they remained closed for the day. A good supply of peaches had appeared today and sold at the usual prices of $1.98 to $3.50.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Sept. 4—Private crop reporters are due to unload today their estimates of what the estimates of the government September crop report will be when it is issued next Monday. What the private investigators will say about wheat and corn one can never tell, but it seems unlikely that they can figure out any production predictions that will indicate other than abundant crops.

The corn crop this year gives every promise of being the largest that was ever raised in any country in the world. That means a crop in the neighborhood of 3,300,000,000 bushels.

Unquestionably the private reports today will set the yield at considerably less than this. The average of such estimates is likely to be no less than 100,000,000 more than the 3,000,000,000 bushel crop.

The likelihood of frost damage to the corn crop is small enough now and it lessens daily. The normal time for the first killing frost is the last of the month or early in October. A hard frost before September 20 would be early.

This year a frost—and a severe one—would have to come before the 15th of this month to do any real damage to corn. Even in the case of an early frost the yield in bushels would not be lessened.

Such a frost would merely catch immature corn and result in that grain being soft and low grade. The economic result would be that it would be rushed to market as soon as possible. Thus the market would be flooded with low-grade corn and prices would be likely to go lower than in case the frost had never done the damage.

FRANCE PLANS FIGHT FOR MARINE TRADE

Paris—France is now ready to strive for a large share of the world merchant marine business.

Hitherto handicapped by limited financial resources shipyards will have assistance from the government to the extent of $8,000,000 for the building of vessels.

In commercial seaplanes French enterprise has more than 4,000,000 tons, nearly a fourth of this tonnage was built 20 years ago and must be replaced.

It is expected that the government credit will enable shipyards to turn out about 130,000 tons a year for five years.

Mt. Gilead, Sept. 4—The opening services to a two-weeks evangelistic campaign to be held at the Friends church, two and one-half miles south of Mt. Gilead, were held yesterday conducted by the Rev. William Kirby, of Huntington Park, Colo., who will have charge of the services during the two weeks.

Labor Day Sunday was observed in the First Baptist church here Sunday by Rev. D. E. Miller, pastor. His morning topic was "Making Killing Stones Stepping Stones." In the evening services, his discussion was on "Laborer's Hands." At 9:30 the Rev. D. E. Miller went to the Bryn Zion Baptist church to conduct a preaching service there.

In the M. E. church the Rev. J. C. Smith observed Labor Day Sunday by preaching on the topic, "The Significance of Labor Day." During the Sunday School hour, Russell Dye, president of the Epworth League, gave a report of the activities at the Lakeside convention. He read the daily program that was followed during the week at Lakeside and thanked the congregation for their efforts in raising funds for the trip. Epworth League meetings started Sunday night with Gertrude Jewell as leader, following a two-months vacation during which the league was not active. The Sunday School orchestra under the direction of H. H. Allen was also on the job yesterday morning following a two-months vacation. In the evening worship Rev. Mr. Smith preached on "The Fullness of Joy."

"A New Day Ahead" was the topic of Rev. W. R. Ellis in the Pleasant Grove Church of Christ yesterday. In the evening services, the young people of the church presented a varied program of musical and oratorical numbers.

Two Galion Couples Are Honored on Anniversaries

Galion, Sept. 4.—The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stogie was celebrated Sunday at their home, 689 Cherry st. with a large number of relatives and friends present.

The program began at noon with a brief service in charge of the Rev. G. F. Zinn, of the First Reformed church, who read the ring service which had united the couple 50 years before. Following the ceremony dinner was served to 40 guests. In the afternoon a social time was enjoyed with many friends of the couple calling and a feature of the occasion was a program of old-fashioned songs and hymns.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with the appropriate color scheme in use and bouquets of the flowers of the season.

Five persons who were present at the original ceremony 50 years ago when the Rev. Mr. Lober, of the Windfall Reformed church united in marriage Mary Elizabeth Hunt and Henry Stogie, were at the anniversary celebration. They were Mr. and Mrs. George

The five daughters of Mr and Mrs. Stogie were in attendance; Mrs. Floyd and Mrs. Spencer Hare, Fredericktown.

The fv daughters of Mr and Mrs. Stogie were inattendance: Mrs. Floyd Keeler, Galion; Mrs. Thomas Hiter, Galion; Mrs. Harry Greeno, Toledo; Mrs. Ed. Link, Toledo, and Mrs. L. J. Wier, Akron. Three grandchildren, Betty Schreck, Galion; Henrietta Lant, Toledo; Kenneth Amick, Portsmouth, and one great grandchild, Nola May Frazier, of Galion, were also present.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. David Scott, Portsmouth, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Hare, Fredericktown, and Miss Lurlene Lewis, Portsmouth.

Bittner Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Bittner, South Market st., quietly celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday with a day's outing at Cedar Point and an enjoyable motor trip. Although many close friends of the couple remembered the occasion with congratulations, a home celebration was inadvisable, as the only close relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Bittner live at too great a distance from Galion to make their attendance possible. Mrs. Bittner before her marriage was Miss Orilla Fink and the wedding service which united the two was read by the Rev. Mr. Sexton, minister of the Universalist church of Columbus, at the home of the bride's parents in Caledonia. Mr. and Mrs. Bittner lived in Caledonia for a number of years, later coming to Galion, where Mr. Bittner was a successful business man for many years. He has been retired from active business for several years although still associated with leading Galion industrial concerns as stockholder.

One daughter, Mrs. Custer Mader, lives in Oakland, Cal., and a brother, John Bittner, resides in Galion. Mrs. Elizabeth Girty, mother of Mrs. Bittner, is also living here.

A cafeteria dinner was served at noon, with a social hour following.

At the afternoon session short talks were given by Rev. J. W. Dowds, Bucyrus, G. W. Howey, Upper Sandusky, D. S. Spangler, Bucyrus, and a number of others. Letters were read from Rev. CIVIL WAR VETERAN DIES AT MARYSVILLE

Dr. James W. Field, 91, Is Buried Today; Probably Oldest Mason in State

Marysville, Sept. 4—Funeral services were held this afternoon for Dr. James W. Field, 91, one of Marysville's oldest and best known citizens. The services, in charge of the Marysville Masonic lodge, were in the E. S. Faulkner funeral chapel and burial was made in Milford Center cemetery.

Dr. Field passed away Sunday at the local hospital, following a short illness. Previous to that time, he was in exceptionally good health and was unusually active for a man of his age. Death was due to kidney and bladder trouble.

The deceased was born in Gorham, N. Y., May 20, 1837, a son of Abel and Zilpha Witter Field. His first residence in Union county was at Milford Center where he was a dentist. He later moved to Marysville and was engaged in the drug business, until 17 years ago, when he retired because of ill health. He was very active in civic affairs and for a time served on the Marysville school board.

Fraternally, he was affiliated with the Marysville lodge of Masons, the K. of P. and I. O. O. F. lodges. At the time of his death he was probably the oldest Mason in this section of Ohio and was the last surviving charter member of the local body. He was also a member of the Napier Commandery, Knights Templar, of Urbana. His membership in these orders brought him many fraternal honors.

He served during the Civil war as a captain of Co. E, 82nd Ohio Infantry, and was a member of the local G. A. R. His wife died 10 years ago. One son, Frank Field, of Toledo, survives.

HEAVY TOLL TAKEN BY HOLIDAY RACES

Three Dead as Result of Indiana Accidents; Eight in Crash at Cleveland

Cleveland, Sept. 4—Two automobile race drivers were in a hospital here today with fractured skulls suffered during the 150-mile championship auto race at North Randall track yesterday which was won by Harry Clifford, driving his Miller "Cliff Ford."

Halsdon Fingstead, Akron, O., auto race spectator, in Bedford hospital this morning said his recovery was reported as uncertain. Kenneth Crispen of Altoona, Pa., had regained consciousness and suffered concussions and internal abdominal injuries but is still serious.

Cars driven by Jerry Berry and Curly Grandal crashed and overturned several times after the race began. A moment later two other machines were thrown together and wrecked on their sides, overturned, scrambling to miss the wreckage.

Four other racers including Fingstead and Crispen, were pitched into the infield. William Hammett of Shamokin, Pa., was cut above the head and injured, and was taken to the same hospital with the two more seriously injured men. He was dismissed today.

Other drivers slowed down, avoiding the wreckage, while the spectators ran onto the track and the tracks were cleared away and the race was resumed, and the race completed. Clifford was in a thrilling finish over Fonty Huckbourn, driving a Chandler special. Clifford won $1,500; Huckbourn $700; Henry Mintz, Akron, $400, and "Red" Boenight, Indianapolis, $200.

THREE DRIVERS DEAD

Fatal Accidents Occur on Indiana Race Tracks

Richmond, Ind., Sept. 4—Three Indiana automobile race drivers are dead today as the result of disasters on three Hoosier race tracks.

Freeman Huey, 27, Fort Wayne, was pinned to death under the wreckage of another car after his own racer had skidded into a post at the Wayne county fairground at Centerville, and had thrown him to the track.

Harry Gorton of Winchester was fatally injured when his racing car crashed through a fence while on a practice round at the county fair race track at Winchester.

Walter Ass of Terre Haute was killed instantly when his machine, travelling more than 70 miles an hour, crashed through a fence at the Jungle park speedway, about 30 miles north of Terre Haute, while he was leading the field in the feature 25-mile automobile race.

HUGHES WILL TAKE STUMP FOR HOOVER

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President of General Motors, Also Backs G. O. P. Nominee

New York, Sept. 4 — Republican presidential campaign forces in New York are elated today following the cabled offer of Charles Evans Hughes to take the stump for Herbert Hoover and the endorsement of the Hoover candidacy by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corp.

An itinerary will be arranged for Hughes, to include several addresses in New York for which three is expected to be a wide radio hookup.

Hughes has been an important figure in New York politics since he was elected governor in 1907. In his race for the presidency in 1916 he carried the east, including his own state.

Sloan's announcement of his support of Hoover is given added interest through the fact that Pierre S. Du Pont, chairman of the board of directors of General Motors, and John J. Raskob, who was financial chairman of the corporation, have come out strongly for Governor Smith, Raskob now being Democratic national chairman.

Sloan's statement follows in part:

"I am in favor of the election of Mr. Hoover for president. In making that statement I want to emphasize that it is my position as an individual and has nothing to do with any business enterprise in which I may be connected.

"I am for Mr. Hoover because I believe in him personally, his record, his experience and what he represents, also in the organization behind him. History demonstrates that this country has been more generally prosperous under Republican administrations and as a result of Republican policies."

LABOR DAY CROWD ESTIMATED AT 5,000

against the chain store system and the passage of legislation providing for a pension for aged workers, unable to obtain [illegible].

"The high wage prevailing today, Strine said, was brought about for the benefit of both members and non-members of trade unions, by organized labor.

"The chain store problem is one of the most serious confronting the nation today," the speaker maintained. "We have taken up arms against those institutions which are fast driving the independent merchants from the field.

"The independent merchants are the backbone of a community while the chain stores pull the money taken in to their headquarters located in other cities. Headquarters has never contributed to the upbuilding of a community such as Marion.

"Low prices may be lower now, but when you have driven the independent merchants out of the business, we, the people will have to pay any price that may be imposed by the chain stores."

Urges Age Pensions

In connection with his advocacy of an old age pension law, Strine stated: "A nation can not continue to be great, as the United States is now considered, unless it protects its industrial workers. Legislation for a pension must be passed to make a more worthwhile nation."

Prediction of the end of the strike and of the boycott on industrial products by union men, was made in the address by Hitchens, former first vice president of the Ohio Federation of Labor. Hitchens has been connected with the labor movement for 46 years and is a member of the printers' union.

"Organized labor is not in favor of strikes and its various unions do all that is possible to prevent rupture between employes and employers. Since I have been connected with a labor union I have never known my union to cause a strike without being driven to it by urgent necessity," he declared.

Hitchens maintained that controversies between capital and labor which would have caused strikes in the past, will be ended by agreements between the two groups in the future.

"We are seeing the benefits of the agreement plan and I believe that dissolution of the strike plan will be an event of the near future. Agreements, too, tend to make the questions and troubles between the two groups more clearly understood by the public.

Sees Brighter Future

"The world, in the labor and industrial point of view, is in great turmoil and this may lead to terrible days of suffering and possible warfare, but my hopes and predictions lead to a brighter time. The more we can do in a just way in helping the labor movement will bring about better times for the people of America."

Preceding a short talk by John Abel, who introduced the principal speaker of the program, R. K. Ruppart, secretary of the Marion Central Labor union, spoke briefly and commented upon the fall political campaign. Ruppart also acted as general chairman of the program.

The first talk on the program was by Dr. George, after he had given the invocation.

"I would be ashamed not to be a friend of labor," Dr. George stated. "We get blessings of life out of labor and I believe in paying the highest respect to men responsible for bringing things to pass. Every structure of modern civilization is a product of labor.

"A man would be a fool if he did not appreciate labor and the price paid for labor. The things that have come out of the factories and mines have had a great part in the making of the world."

Silent Tribute

A silent tribute to the Rev. Frank P. George, former pastor of Community church, Herman st., who was drowned in Sandusky bay several weeks ago, was given following the speaking program.

A display of fireworks terminated the celebration of Labor day at the park, last night. The fireworks were held on the east side of the lake and were witnessed by a throng of spectators.

His parents, both of whom survive him, have also lived in Marion all their lives. The young man graduated from St. Mary's Parochial high school in 1923. He was a member of St. Mary's Catholic church and of Alpha Mu chapter, Kappa Alpha Phi fraternity. He was to have gone to Columbus his second year as a student at Illiss college today.

Other Accidents

Mrs. Scott, Toledo, was injured when the Buick, driven by Paul C. Hoffman, Columbus, sideswiped the Ford in which she was riding, causing it to skid off the road. Hoffman was going south and the roadster, driven by the husband of Mrs. Scott, was traveling north. Mrs. Scott, injured by the flying glass, was taken to City hospital for treatment. The other persons were not injured.

The Ford was almost demolished while the Buick was only slightly damaged. Both cars were taken to Albert Bros. garage, North Main st., for repairs.

The accident in which Mrs. Blinn and Robert O'Connell were injured, occurred when an Isaly Dairy truck driven by O'Connell, was struck by the Studebaker in which Mrs. Blinn and her husband were riding, about 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning on West Center st.

Mrs. Blinn received an injury to her head. She was taken to City hospital and 17 stitches taken to close the wound. She was discharged yesterday. O'Connell sustained only slight injuries and is recovering today at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O'Connell, 224 North Prospect st.

Couple in Circus Runaway Case Given Suspended Sentences

OUT OF WORK AND BROKE, HOLDS UP CONDUCTOR

Toledo, Sept. 4.—Out of work, broke and with no prospects of a job, George J. Mears, 43, claiming Clyde, O., as his home, today gave police of the New York Central railroad and Toledo officers, the above reasons for his attempted holdup of Pullman Conductor Buck of the Cleveland-Chicago N. Y. C. flier.

Mears said he went to Cleveland from here Saturday in search for work, which he was unable to find, and that he decided upon the holdup, according to the police report. Mears hid in a compartment of the Pullman car, and when the conductor passed, held him up at point of gun. Conductor Buck managed to knock the automatic from Mears' hand and with the aid of passengers overpowered the man.

OHIO SEARCHES FOR DESPERATE GUNMEN

Two "Lifers" Escape from Lima Insane Asylum by Overpowering Guard

Lima, Sept. 4.—With all Ohio and western Indiana authorities tushed in a determined effort to recapture Clarence Beard and Thomas McKenna, both desperate gunmen who escaped from the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane after overpowering a guard early Sunday, no trace of the fleeing men has been reported today and recourse was had to the aid of radio alarms when the bureau of criminal identification at Columbus broadcast a description of the prisoners.

McKenna is said to have been the "brains" of the plot to "crush out."

When R. L. Hoyt, hospital guard, made his way past McKenna's cell, the latter pried his way through a mesh grill over his transom window, jumped soft-footedly to the corridor floor and followed the unsuspecting guard down the corridor until he had passed the cell where Beard was confined. Beard then wriggled his way through the transom, sprang upon the guard and both prisoners locked the overpowered man in an adjacent cell.

They made their way, undetected, through the courtyard, scaled a 30-foot wall and it is estimated had a 15-minute headway before the imprisoned guard could give the alarm. Both men were "lifers."

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Anthony, 141 Lincoln av., have returned home after spending the last two weeks with relatives and friends at Winchester, Va., Hanover, Pa., and Hagerstown, Md.

Never an Iron on My Hair

Wherever my theatrical engagements happen to take me I could have a marcel, but I never do. I prefer my own method—waving my hair with my Wave and Sheen.

Miss Wallace Hagaman as she looks today

I always keep my hair clean by shampooing once a week. I apply Wake and Sheen with a comb. You can use a brush, or just your hands.

I dampen the hair with it—insert combs in the direction I wish the waves, tie a veil over my hair and keep it on for about an hour. Some types of hair require more time, some less.

The result is a soft, lovely, undulating wave. Most people in my audiences think I have it marceled. Many ask whether it is a natural wave. It is not.

You can have this same sheen no matter what method you use to wave your hair. Get a bottle at any toilet counter for 75 cents. One trial will convince you as it has thousands of others.—Adv.

"Good Equipment Makes a Good Farmer Better."

It might be a good thing if the county health department would send out a truck to gather up the cats that are killed every night on The Harding Highway. Perhaps a cat can see in the dark, but a motorist can't, which probably accounts for so many cat-astrophies.

Hassell and Cramer Rescued.

The world rejoices over the news from Greenland recording the rescue of Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, of the Greater Rockford, fifty the last two weeks among the missing. The world rejoices that they are alive and well. What's the tribute the world pays to courage and daring even in failure of accomplishment.

The story of the rescue comes from Professor William H. Hobbs, of the University of Michigan observatory at Mt. Evans in southern Greenland, members of whose party brought the two aviators off by boat from Point Sukkertoppen, where they were forced to make a landing, when their smoke signals were observed.

Here we have an illustration of the great danger in flying over wild territory. Point Sukkertoppen is but fifty miles from Mt. Evans, which was the immediate objective of the two aviators. A landing place had been prepared there, from which they had planned to take off for the flight to Sweden. They hopped off from Cochrane, Ontario, shortly after noon on August 18 and made their forced landing at Point Sukkertoppen the following day. They suffered no injury in landing and their plane was undamaged. They had at hand everything in the way of instruments with which it was equipped and all the emergency provisions which it carried. Yet landing under the most favorable circumstances under which a forced landing might be made and possessed of equipment and provisions, they traveled about for two weeks in the northern wilds, existing on reduced rations of pemmican. And all this time their immediate goal was but fifty miles away! No longer able to travel in the direction in which they believed Mt. Evans to be, their progress being barred by a fjord, they sent up their smoke signal which, fortunately, was observed, and their rescue followed.

When a plane is forced down, without injury to its crew, in such wilds as those of Greenland, the chances are that the aviators will survive longer than they would were they forced down at sea. There has yet to be constructed a plane capable of withstanding the winds and waves of the sea. But were there such a plane and were it forced down in the North Atlantic sea lanes, the chances of the quick rescue of its crew would be far better than would by those of the crew of a plane forced down far away from civilization in the wilds of Greenland.

In other words, the danger of the sea is far from the only great danger which the aviator faces in attempting a transatlantic flight. We do not know. We can not tell. A number of such aviators supposed to have been lost at sea may have died from exposure, or starvation, or some other cause, on land, lost in the frozen regions of the North annihilated by man.

An Unfair Comparison.

Speaking before a luncheon club in Washington, Miss Lee of Santa Maria, director of the bureau of international relations of the University of Porto Rico, pointed out the difference between the receptions accorded Doris Stevens and her companions in Paris, last week, when Doris attempted to present to the makers of the Kellogg peace pact an equal rights treaty for women, and the reception accorded her at the recent Pan-American conference in Havana, heading that it marked the divergence between the enlightenment of the two hemispheres and the divergence between the viewpoints of the men of France and those of the men of America. While Miss Stevens and the other members of the committee were met by the police in Paris, she said, the doors of the Pan-American conference were thrown open to them, and that the present Inter-American Commission of Women, of which she is the head, is the outcome of the plea made in Havana by Miss Stevens.

We men of America should be pleased over tributes to our gallantry, and possibly would be were they based upon foundations of fact, but we hardly can be when such tributes come through misstatements of fact and manifest unfairness. To make them worthy, such comparisons must possess the quality of fairness, and Miss Lee's sense of fairness seems to be as much out of joint as her reported statements of fact.

The two cases were not at all similar. The Havana conference was a gathering to which visitors—at least, some visitors—were admitted. There was absolutely no impropriety in the action of Miss Stevens in presenting her petition to such a gathering, having secured the permission of the chair.

The scene of the other occurrence to which Miss Lee refers was not Paris, and the Paris police figured in it in no way. It was at Rambouillet, a pretty little town of about 6,500 inhabitants, where Miss Stevens and her party were apprehended by the police and taken to jail. Rambouillet is the summer home of the president of France, the official residence being a beautiful chateau surrounded by a fine park of about 3,000 acres. President Doumergue was giving a dinner there to the representatives of the fifteen nations which had signed the peace pact and a few French dignitaries when Miss Stevens and her crowd sought entrance at the park gates. It was explained that the function was not public in any sense of the word and admittance was refused. Thereupon Miss Stevens and the other members of the Woman's party committee attempted to crash the gate and were run in by the police.

Without going into the comparative enlightenment of the two hemispheres, or the comparative esteem of the men of the two hemispheres for womankind, it may be said that womanhood, as a whole, will not hold the high place in the esteem of American men it should no long as elements of the sex outrage the proprieties as Miss Stevens and her companions did at Rambouillet in what has the earmarks of having been a bid for notoriety. Such acts can not but serve to weaken the high esteem in which womanhood in general is held by the men of America, and Miss Lee adds nothing to her cause by the lack of fairness manifested in her comparison.

The special grand jury called in Chicago to investigate crime conditions up there reports that "the utter disregard for the fulfillment of their duties by the police department is appalling, and there is no question in the minds of the members of this jury that the police department is rotten to the core." It is stated that two eastern society women subscribed something like $1,500,000 each to pep up stock in the Floranda club development, which collapsed with a loss of $6,000,000. We simply couldn't imagine ourself investing a sum like that in any Florida realty enterprise.

As proof that France is prospering, a Paris cable recites that the latest government statistics show that only 1,300 people over there are drawing unemployment bonuses, while almost 1,000,000 are drawing doles in England. Unquestionably, France is in a much better condition than England so far as unemployment is concerned, but the explanation is always possible that fewer Frenchmen than Englishmen have an inborn hostility toward work.

Milk and Sore Throat.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

They have had a bad time in New England. There has been an epidemic of sore throat. Hundreds have it and many died.

It is easy humans to become neglectful. Even though we learn how certain diseases are carried and what to do to prevent the evil, we get careless. In the absence of trouble for a long time, we lapse into forgetfulness of possible danger.

That is the case with smallpox, and other preventable diseases. It is true of fire hazards and various elements due to industrial hazards.

One of the greatest boons to humanity was the discovery that pasteurizing milk is a very sure means of making it safe. Milk can be made safe without pasteurization provided rigid inspections are possible. But without care in the handling, this essential food, instead, may be converted into a deadly poison.

Among the diseases which have been traced to contaminated milk is the epidemic sore throat. In the account I read of the epidemic in Massachusetts it said that samples of milk sent to Boston for examination were found to contain the germs of scarlet fever and septic sore throat.

Human beings who may be perfectly well themselves are sometimes the carriers of disease germs. In the pockets of their tweeds or in some other cavity of the body, there may be harbored these deadly agents. They breed and multiply here and are continually expelled into the air. They may reach milk or other articles of food and thus carry disease to distant homes.

The public has heard about typhoid fever carriers. Everybody knows how dangerous they are unless they cooperate with the health authorities.

While I was health commissioner of New York City one of our alert inspectors found a typhoid carrier in the family of an employe living on the "water shed" of the city. While the prospect was remote, there was the danger that the water supply might have become contaminated.

It is a great tribute to their skill that research scientists have revealed this fact and made it possible for health officials to head off possible epidemics. That is what happened in Massachusetts. Very quickly the authorities traced the septic sore throat epidemic to contaminated milk. Before now, no doubt, they have found the particular human who was the starting point of the epidemic.

Some time we will know more about the different types of germs. At present it is difficult to separate one type from another remarkably similar in growth and appearance under the microscope. We may be confident, however, that the scientists will not stop their studies until this differentiation has been accomplished.

The housewife can do no greater thing for her family than to make sure that the milk she uses comes from a safe source. If there is any doubt about it talk with the local health officer. He will advise you.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

When you discover a man who gets through yet finds time to read three books a week, or maybe five, you look at him with wonder. Or when you hear of a man who has produced a full length novel a year for many years or written a twelve-volume history of the United States, you stand in awe and wonder. How do they do it? How can a man produce so much?

The answer is simple enough. It's work—just work. And most of us are very lazy—not just a little lazy, but very lazy. Study the great producers and you find they do not sleep eight, nine or ten hours. They are not afraid of five-thirty in the morning. They are not shocked by finding themselves busy at midnight. They have energy, abundance of it. Some of them even have energy without health. That is a hard load to carry. Above all they have the initiative to start things. They have endurance. They have the capacity not only for working—but for starting to work.

A man or woman must have an extraordinary amount of ability, a tremendous capacity for useful production to be forgiven a bad disposition. An irritable temper and bad manners are not to be excused in anybody except a positive, producing genius. You ought to be spanked when you show the teeth of your temper or temperament.

Next to religious and racial intolerance there is perhaps nothing worse than sectional intolerance. The prevalence of opinion in the Middle West that New York is "up stage" and contemptuous of the rest of the country or that New York wants to run the rest of the country is without foundation in fact and is merely an unfounded prejudice. And equally to be deplored and condemned is the apparent opinion of some New Yorkers that the world comes to some sort of a mysterious end on the outskirts of Buffalo and that the Middle West is largely peopled with Indians and overrun with rattlesnakes and stage coaches.

The intelligent people of the West are not prejudiced against New York and the intelligent people of New York are not prejudiced against the West. Too bad there are not more intelligent people in both places.

Joseph Joachim—Composer.

BY COLETTE DOUGLASS.

Joseph Joachim, who is known as one of the greatest masters of the violin as well as a composer, was born at Kittsee, near Pressburg on June 28, 1831.

Joachim studied the violin when he was but five years old, his first teacher being the leader of the Pest opera-house. The boy appeared in public concert with his master when he was but seven years of age.

In 1841 he entered the conservatory at Vienna, where he studied under Bohm until 1843 when he went to Leipzig to enter the newly founded conservatory. Mendelssohn on hearing him play pronounced that he did not need the regular training of a school, but recommended that he receive a thorough general education in music.

From Leipzig he went to London in 1844, where his appearance at the Drury Lane theater, created a sensation. This was the first of many visits to England, and after the foundation of the popular concerts he appeared there annually.

In 1850 on Liszt's invitation, Joachim accepted the post of concert master at Weimar, where he remained until 1853. Although his post brought Joachim into close contact with the advanced German School of Musicians, he was forced to resign his position in 1853.

A similar post was offered him in Hanover, where he was brought into an entirely different atmosphere, and while playing at the Dusseldorf festival, Joachim procured the intimate friendship of Robert Schumann. His introduction of the young Brahms to Schumann is an historic and famous incident of this time.

During his stay in Hanover, Joachim met the concert singer, Amalie Weiss, whom he married in 1863. After her retirement from the operatic stage, she devoted herself to concert singing and her interpretation of Schumann's songs was unrivalled.

Joachim was showered with degrees and decorations from famous universities and various countries. He was gifted with the power of interpreting the greatest music in absolute perfection.

Joachim's compositions, mostly for the violin are of a sombre, passionate cast, the finest of which is probably the "Hungarian" concerto, opus 11 D minor.

Joachim died in Berlin on August 15, 1907, his wife having died eight years previously.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Rhythm and Life.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

A very interesting analogy between the life phenomena of animals and certain reactions of inorganic substances, such as iron and other metals, is described in "Science," by Professor Mayo & Lillie. The technics of this investigation are not for the layman, but the interest of the subject is so great that some statement of the conclusions reached, or suggested, seems appropriate for popular reading.

The subject of the inquiry is the analogies between physiological rhythms and the rhythmical reactions in inorganic systems.

The emphasis is upon rhythm—periodicity, pausing, the alternation of active and passive periods. The beating of the heart, for instance, is rhythmical. Iron placed in nitric acid exhibits a rhythmic reaction, accompanied by the periodical formation and removal of a thin surface film. This is characteristic of both physiological and inorganic reactions. "The parallelism with the rhythmical reactions of living tissues—of the heart, nerve centers, muscles—have long attracted attention," says Professor Lillie.

Arsenic when placed in nitric acid shows remarkable rhythmic properties, and the essential condition determining the persistent rhythm is found to be the presence of some local area, or areas, in which the reaction of the metal with the acid is continuous. "Such a continually active region," says Professor Lillie, "may be compared with the anode, or pace-making, region of the heart, or with the pace-making region of the heart, or with the normal body, or pacemaker, of a clock. In each, a constant activating influence to which reacts a constant activating influence to which reacts a constant passive part of the whole responds as soon as it is sufficiently recovered."

Both in the case of smart heat and in that of the reaction of passive iron the rhythm is affected by electrical polarization. Other details of resemblance to heart action are pointed out of resemblance to heart action are pointed out of research observations.

The general interest of these observations lies in their bearing upon the question of the nature of life. Is it possible upon such analogies to predicate the essential identity of inorganic and electrical action? And what with chemical and electrical action? And if it can we get farther, as some wish to go, completely including everything that any living creature possesses, even the phenomena of "will and reason?"

If so, then the work of biological science would seem to consist in destroying, by intervening into natural, everything that mankind has hitherto cherished as its distinctive birthright.

The analogy of rhythm in a book may be carried very far. An Indian scientist has found "heart beat" in trees. The succession of waves, or vibrations of any kind, is rhythmic. The sun-spot period is irregularly rhythmic, the grand generalizations at which modern astronomy is arriving show the whole universe as a mighty rhythmic system, with, perhaps, pace-making regions through whose continuous activity the cosmos of suns is maintained in perpetual existence. Passing from the infinite to the infinitesimal, we find at the other end, if the latest theories are correct, that atoms themselves are similar systems, and their electrons only rhythmic frequencies.

Just Traveling About.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

Somewhere in California, Sept. 4—Leaving San Diego at sunup we headed in the general direction of Los Angeles, and the evening we are somewhere or other that has a hotel called the Blue Front. The frame fits the monotony of it. Nor do I care for the group of shiftless Mexicans loafing in the office in a big way.

We're wrong road—and here we are. A city chap lives in the wide open spaces who would give—not a nickel—two cent cases, $18.42 in cash, a Swiss wrist watch, a dusty pair of spats, three sticks of gum slightly used and a broken-down typewriter, to be whistling across Times Square tonight.

Opposite the Blue Front is a shack with a small yard enclosed with a tangle of barbed wire. In the yard is something that looks like a coyote. It will be a quiet night, listening to whatever it is and trying to sleep.

The proprietress is a work-worn drudge with a wisp of hair knotted on top of her head. Her husband is a one-eyed half-breed. Drawing the finger across the throat describes him perfectly. Ricketts, the chauffeur, added to the general gloom with, "That guy ain't up to no lovemakin'."

Our room is reached up a back stair leading from the kitchen, and has what started out to be a window, but didn't get far—a sort of glorified knot-hole. Inquiring about rates, One Eye said, "A dollar," and added emphatically, "down."

There is nothing to do but stay, as we are out of gas and the nearest garage is four miles away. Incidentally, old One Eye is lounging in the doorway watching me peck the typewriter. The dinner consisted of moldy beans, stale bread, canned peaches, anemic coffee served in tin cups and an expensive meal at twenty-five cents a plate.

A half block away is, I suppose, the main street. It consists of a little country store with a porch whose posts are embalmed with tobacco, baking powder and chewing gum signs. A poultry store with footbins of boxes and crates. A notary public's office and a little cottage. That is all.

Along the highway today were many old missions—some now crumbled away to mere adobe walls. Others include a chapel, several homes, a granary and a graveyard. Feeble old caretakers putter about to show visitors peeps of a vanishing past.

California has many up-to-the-minute towns, however, you never hear about. They are built away in bowls, surrounded by rugged hills and have a newness and cosmopolitan manner. The tourist is no novelty, for they stream through daily from all parts of the country.

One of the beautiful little spots near San Diego is Ortmamont, an exclusive colony crowning an isolated peak. Here home owners include Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond and Owen Wister.

Also there is Ramona—the name so recently glorified in song along Broadway. Here the emblems of the world was accentuated. Stopping at a rose-clad cottage to ask a direction, I noticed a name on a mail box. It was the same as that of a lady who conducted a boarding house on West Fifty-seventh street in New York where I once lived and paid my board regularly. She opened the door, glanced at me coldly and shut it again. How sharper is ingratitude than something or other about a serpent's tooth!

Old One Eye just came clumping up the stairs again. "Play grands?" he inquired, opening the door without knocking. I told him I didn't. "We are starting a little game," he ventured. I suspect a variant of the old army game with a little dirty work at the crossroads on the side.

Far off somewhere in the eerie, forlorn tune from a mouth organ. All that is needed to complete a first-class blood-curdling is the mournful "Whoo-oo-o" of an owl. Or a pistol shot in the dark. Editorial Opinion.

INDICTMENT OF AMERICAN JUSTICE.

On August 23, at various places and in various manners, "Sacco-Vanzetti Day" was celebrated by exercises characterized by varying degrees of hysteria by people who thus indicted American justice and repudiated the protracted and careful processes of Massachusetts law. Notably, in this country, the "martyrs" found a fitting eulogist in the muckraking Mencken, whose pride in the defamation and damnation of things American so prominently, and justifiably, we are told, regularly is exemplified in his periodical, the Mirror.

The fairy tale which transmuted these murderers into the semblance of persecuted individuals, wounded by the vindictive intolerance, prejudice, ignorance, hatred and malevolence of the entire American people—outside the radical hierarchy of hell-bent government destruction—was spread throughout the earth. It gave birth to an international hysteria without parallel in the story of communistic propaganda. Americans liberals, radicals and intellectuals helped the "good cause" along to the best of their ability. Tons of literature were printed; a cosmos of emotionalism was released; people went up and down this land and other lands singing the praises and virtues of these men. It was announced far and wide that they were innocent, that their natures were gentle and poetic, that their lives had been devoted to a service which paled that of the Preacher of the Sermon on the Mount. Immense sums were raised for their defense against the capitalistic commonwealth of Massachusetts. Able lawyers and writers were enlisted in their behalf. But all of this failed either to secure their liberty or to restore to life the victim of their murderous attack. The state of Massachusetts refused to bow to the dictates of the wielders of bombs and secret daggers, or to the yells of infuriated mobs which rang from Moscow to Patagonia.

These men were given every right and privilege that criminals may demand, defeated justice for seven years, and finally paid the penalty their crime invited, by death in the electric chair.

Their "day" called for the exercise and confession of "personal humiliation and repentance." It should have done so, humiliation that they should so long have been enabled to defeat the procedure of American justice, and a repentance that would assure the country the impossibility of a recurrence of the shameful incidents associated with the efforts made in their defense.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

GRANT BOOSTER FOR CONGRESS.

Grant E. Mouser, Jr., Marion, assistant attorney general of Ohio and son of Judge Grant E. Mouser, who represented the Marion district in congress twenty years or more ago, will give Congressman Brooks Fletcher "a merry chase" this fall. . . . The father made a brilliant record. The son, thoroughly trained in the law and in politics, hopes to follow in the footsteps of his distinguished father.

Fletcher is serving his second term. There is an "unwritten law" in the Eighth district against third terms. Congressman R. Clint Cole, Republican, Findlay, tried it; others have tried it and failed. Fletcher is a Democrat of the Wilsonian school pledged to support Governor Alfred E. Smith for president. The district is normally Democratic, but with Mouser as their candidate and with Fletcher running for a third term, Republicans are enthusiastic and believe that Hill's returns will show an overwhelming majority for Mouser.

Mouser is the kind of a Republican who will look to the Bark Hoover solution.—Lima Gem.

R[illegible], Sept. 4—With the [illegible] of excitement over the [illegible] Hassell and Parker [illegible] fliers, quieted down, [illegible] was soberly planning a gigantic celebration on the occasion of their return home.

When the aviators, who were lost for two weeks in the barren Arctic region of Mt. Evans, Greenland, while attempting a flight from Rockford to Sweden, are returned to this city they will be accorded the greatest ovation in Rockford's history.

Just when that will be, no one can say. The future plans of the fliers have not been announced. For the present they are resting and recovering from their hardships at the base camp in Mt. Evans.

Their plane was undamaged in the forced landing, but had to be abandoned temporarily. Whether Hassell and Cramer will seek to recover the plane and continue their interrrupted flight to Sweden or return to Rockford, has not been determined.

Action in Going to Holstenberg Seen as Abandonment of Plan

London, Sept. 4—Bert Hassel and Parker Cramer, the Rockford to Sweden fliers who are now safe at Mount Evans after wandering about the wastes of Greenland for two weeks, following a forced landing, expected today to go to Holstenberg, Greenland, by motorboat, according to a radio from the wireless station at Julienhaas, Greenland, picked up by the Exchange Telegraph Co. here.

The radio dispatches, the first to bring direct news of Hassell and Cramer here, stated that the fliers' plane landed safely on the ice fields of the Sukkertoppen arm about 100 miles south of Mount Evans on Aug. 19.

According to the Julienhaag radio, storms have been raging for several days in the vicinity where the plane landed. It was feared that the plane may have been damaged as a result. The fact that Hassell and Cramer were going to Holstenberg was taken as an indication that the fliers were contemplating an early return to the United States and had given up hopes of completing their flight to Sweden.

COMMON SENSE KEEPS PIPES IN HOUSEHOLD OPEN

Two Minutes' Care a Week Can Save Costly Plumbers' Bills and Turn-up Floors

Slow-running drain pipes are the most aggravating of nuisances—except a turn-up floor and plumber bills. Both are unnecessary. Both can be avoided—thanks to Red Seal Lye.

Two minutes does it, once a week. Just shake a small quantity into hot water and flush out with more hot water. That is all that is necessary if you use Red Seal Lye. For Red Seal Lye is 97% pure lye. The quickest, surest, most economical made. It dissolves vegetable matter, matted hair and grease as fast as water does salt. It leaves drain pipes clean, sanitary, free-flowing.

Keep one of the handy Red Seal cans in the kitchen. This saves useless steps.

And now (while you are thinking about it) put down "a can of Red Seal Lye" on your grocery list. Then make it a habit (like winding the kitchen clock) to follow this simple rule of "2 minutes a week."

Never again will you have a slow-running, annoying drain pipe—or a plumber ripping up your floors to take a pipe apart. One 15c can of Red Seal Lye is a small insurance premium against such unnecessary nuisances.

A ROMANCE OF GRIPPING HUMAN INTEREST

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

d not change for a time. at by with Kitten remain- m for the most part, com- r meals or when Marty ked to see her. Emily was t these conferences. t about rather serenely. e firm belief that Marty r and the will to lead them eir difficulties. She made over him, insisting upon bite of freshly baked cake the case might be. d these favors somewhat Emily remembered the had come to the table in the dining room, red and awkward and choking on her mother's strong tea. He had gone a long way since then; his manner now was easy and assured and had the appearance of a gentleman.

But she doubted that the inner Nolan had changed.

He was different in another way; nearly a year now since he had said he was going to marry her some day. Sometimes she wondered if he had given up that idea. Agnes, she knew, saw in his professional service only the devotion of one almost a member of the family.

Emily asked herself if this was in his mind. If, offended by her indifference, he had waited for a chance to establish himself with her and was using the present opportunity for that purpose.

If he came to her after he had cleared Kitten and asked her to marry him, what would she say?

What could she say?

She put that question from her. It couldn't be answered now.

Once Kitten confessed, shiveringly, that she had tried to run away. She had gathered what money she could, a pitifully small horde, and had gone to the station. But when she tried to buy a ticket a man stepped up to her.

"I wouldn't do that, Miss Day," he had said.

She had turned on him furiously. And he had pulled his coat back so she saw a badge pinned to the underside. "Deputy Sheriff" was engraved on the silver.

"Do you think they're always watching me, Emmy? Someone always watching?"

"Don't mind, Kitten-kid. It will be over sometime. Let's try to forget it."

But Emily couldn't forget. There were mornings going down to the shop when she remembered a long ago experience; that moment of hesitation in the doorway at Anne Morrow's party. The eyes. Eyes everywhere, all focused upon herself. Round stares, appraising and criticizing. And herself standing alone.

Not that she was stared at now. Few knew of Kitten's connection with the Wickert killing. But she felt herself isolated and grew abnormally sensitive; in time she got to thinking of the illusion of eyes as public opinion. Her thoughts shrank before it.

She told Frances something of this and the astute mind suspected the rest. After that Frances insisted upon her going about a great deal. She would plan pleasant little drives to near-by towns and even trips to the city. But it made small difference. The only occasions upon which Emily felt really comfortable were those which placed her alone with her partner in the house at Great View.

Being mue By herself, she began to give way to curious fancies. She thought often of the night Marty had come to say he was going to law school, and of the chill which had struck through her for no reason at all.

Marty and Kent each entering the same profession; two whose lives met because of hers somewhat as two lines of a triangle are joined by a third. She had wondered about the impression then.

But it seemed clear enough now. Kent, whom she had loved, prosecuting her sister, perhaps, on a charge of murder. And Marty, whom she had feared and disliked, coming to her aid.

Existence held strange ironies; played unreasonable jokes.

One day Stella telephoned. She was living in South Lyall and wished to see her old friend.

So on a noon hour Emily called at the little apartment. Stella, grown thin and rather woe-begone, greeted her solemnly and took her at once to the wicker cradle where her small son slept.

"He's a bright, lovely baby, Em. Sometimes it almost seems he knows things. All about me. I think he's sorry for me the way he looks with his black eyes soft and round. Whatever comes, I've got him. Something to live for."

It was easy to see she wasn't happy; there was an atmosphere of desolation in the rooms.

"Does Sheets love him, dear?"

Stella dropped her hands, palms up; it was, Emily reflected, as if she were letting something slip away. "Sheets hardly looks at him. That's all over though; I've been hurt so much I don't seem to feel any more.

"I'm going to leave him, Em. No use dragging out a life like this. I said I would make him love me, didn't I? But I couldn't. No one could. He hasn't anything to love with; no heart.

"Oh, I don't blame him too much," she went on, listlessly. "A boy brought up with the idea that the world and everything in it are for the taking. Of course he'd be selfish. That's what too much money does for them, Emmy.

"He's had his own friends right from the start and they don't want me. He's gone his way just as he pleased and if ever I had anything to say he's thrown it up how he married me.

"Watch out for his kind, Emmy. But I guess you'll do that. I remember how your father used to talk."

Emily wished to say something comforting, to offer this tragic, beaten girl a bit of sympathy. But there was nothing which would help. Of course Stella had started wrong; she had been at a disadvantage from the beginning. But Sheets was another like Kingdon Coles; given a twist in her own disposition and a father like Peter Brent and she, herself, might now be in Stella's place.

"My folks are crazy about the boy," Stella went on. "We're going home to live and mother can help take care of him. I'll have to find work. Sheets will do nothing for us. You don't know of anything?"

Emily thought of the job they had meant to make for Kitten in the shop and flushed with eagerness. "Maybe I do, Stell. The pay wouldn't be so much but we'd like to have you."

"If it's only enough to get along on. All I want now is a chance to be quiet and forget. I feel sometimes if it wasn't for the baby I couldn't keep going."

It would be another month before she could leave the boy but she was going home in a few days. She couldn't stand her life with Sheets longer than that.

So it was arranged; Emily would speak to Frances about the place. She was sure it would be all right.

She carried away the memory of Stella's faint smile. Very weary it seemed, very hopeless.

Kitten walked with her in the evening. They strolled up toward North Mountain, past blossoming hedges fragrant with June, rather silently, feeling the menace of what hung over them.

At the end of the road they stopped while a long, green roadster circled the small park and went back down the River Road with a whining of gears.

As the car dashed under the street light Kitten threw herself forward, almost beneath the wheels; only the driver's reckless swerve saved her. Afterward she stood with her teeth knocking together, clutching at her sister's arm.

"It's the woman, Em! Driving that car—the one that came to the Inn. I saw her right in the light. She's the woman!"

Emily walked along calmly enough, Kitten chattering at her side. But her mind had gone blank. She, too, had seen the woman in the car.

It was Avis Bennitt.

Nothing brings out the grease spots like a full-length mirror.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Tuesday, and almost as warm as it has ever been. My grandfather told us about colored folks today. They are colored because it is so warm in their country that they have to have a lot of shade to keep under so they won't get frizzled up, and their color is right under their skins, so that they are in the shade all the time, and their hair is bent like it is so that it will be springy and the sun's rays will bounce off when they hit it. The Indian is red because the country he lives in is not so hot and gets quite cold in winter, and the red is a warm color. When I asked him why a Chinaman is yellow and a white man white, he said it was time to take my cows out. So I swiped a couple of pancakes for Jubilee and went out where him and the bunch was waiting.

We took a swim clothes and all in the pasture creek, and another in Mud Turkle pond, and by that time we were to the orchard we had been thinking about. The golden sweet tree was way up near the house where they always are, and Nibs said if we would go to the door and ast the farmer for a drink he would go to the tree which was behind the barn and load his shirt full for us. So we went, and a nice looking lady came to the door, and then a man came out of the barn and came to where we were. We asted for a drink and while we were drinking the man said we were a fine looking lot of children and wouldn't we like some nice apples. We said we didn't care for any, and he said for us to stay right there and he would get us a few anyhow, and here he came holding Nibs by the collar. When he asted us if we knowed Nibs Feeble turned up her nose and said, "What, that dirty little boy?" Then Nibs began to make out like he was crying, and the farmer's wife took him in the house and washed his face and kissed him and brang him to the door and told him to run along and things had come to a pretty pass if a little boy couldn't have a few apples. So we all went, and when we went out the big gate and looked back they were looking after us and he had one arm around her. I am going to be a farmer and raise apples for little boys and girls.

While Nibs was getting his face washed the bunch skinned the tree.

Love's Awakening

THE HEART STORY OF A WOMAN'S AFFECTIONS

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Turns to Madge's Father For Counsel

WITH hands that were slightly tremulous Lillian folded the note she had just written to her old friend, Helen Brixton, and looked over at Katherine and me. There was no mirthful comment on Katherine's lips now as there had been when Lillian had read us the answer to Samuel Brixton's letter which was to enclose the one to his wife. Both of us knew Lillian Underwood's capacity for loyal, loving friendship, and knew that the message from her troubled past, when Helen Brixton had been her best friend, had moved her strongly.

"Will it do?" Lillian asked, as meekly as if she were a schoolgirl submitting a "bread and butter letter" for her mother's criticism.

"I don't see how you could better it," I told her, and Katherine promptly seconded my verdict.

"Then, that's that," Lillian said, rising and putting both letters in her desk. "I'll copy them and get them off on the first mail tomorrow."

"Why don't you type Mr. Brixton's and keep a carbon," I suggested.

"Thanks, I'll just do that little thing," she answered, and returning to her chair, sat down in it and stretched her arms high above her head.

"The well-known aspen has nothing on me in shakiness over this," she confessed. "Allah knows I'm used to fighting my own battles and sizing up people without asking advice of what Mrs. Tiger calls 'the opposite sects,' but I would like a man on this job. Oh!" as I started to speak, "either Harry or Dicky would stick around if I asked them to, but they wouldn't be of any aid in sizing up Sam Brixton, for they're too prejudiced on account of—the—past. But I feel as though it would take a man—I don't mean just anybody but one, of keen mentality to penetrate the murk which Sam Brixton calls his soul."

"Madge is probably too modest to call your attention to the fact that her father answers your description." Get your letters off and give me the telegram when it arrives," Katherine said quietly.

Lillian struck one hand against the other.

"I told you this thing had me goofy," she said. "The blessed old chief! He's been away so long that I had forgotten he was available for wise counsel again. I'll tell him about this tomorrow——"

Her voice trailed away dispiritedly and there was unconscious appeal in her eyes. I answered it promptly.

"You've had enough of this for a while," I said. "Fix up your letters, then give me your copies and the one from Mr. Brixton. I'll show them to Father and tell him all about it. You can be sure he won't say anything to you about it until the guests arrive. Then he'll do anything you wish."

"You blessed child!" Lillian said fervently. "I am fed up with this thing and it's getting on my nerves, I guess."

"Why do you need to think of it again until they get here?" I asked.

"You've only two details to think of and I will attend to everything else."

Katherine nodded an assent, then looked keenly at Lillian.

"I prescribe an immediate dose of sleep," she said. "Madge, will you keep an eye on Junior's room so if he wakes up—which I doubt—you can get him a drink of water? I'm going to give this lady an alcohol rub and tuck her in for the night."

I went out of the room abruptly, for I had caught a look on Lillian's face which told me that she was very near nervous tears, something so rare in her routine that it frightens me when I see them. But I knew Katherine would calm her if she could, and as I sat in the dim upper hall I blessed my little woman's tact and insight.

It was half an hour before Katherine came into the hall, and then drew me into her own room and closed the door before speaking.

"She's asleep," she said, "but don't want to take any chance of waking and hearing me. Tell me, she have anything upset her today about the Brixton matter?"
